Ever Watchful, Always Ready

Cooler temperatures and wet conditions have helped to keep fires to a minimum across the state but fire agencies remain vigilant. Currently there are no fire hazards or warnings to report. Flight crews continue to monitor the wildland areas and fire management personnel are keeping watch over their respective zones. Continued fire safety and preparedness is requested to insure that human caused fires remain at a minimum. Recent rain is not a season ending event!!! Fire danger is still high and preventive measures are encouraged. Alaskans are encouraged to take responsibility through individual efforts and community programs to reduce the threat of fire to homes and property. Lighting-caused fires are a natural process; remember, roughly 70% of wildland fires in Alaska are human-caused each year.

Prescribed Fire

The last prescribed burn of the season is scheduled for Donnelly Training Area West on Saturday, June 2.

Fire Information

Two new human-caused fires, both .5 acres or less, were reported to the Alaska Interagency Coordination Center (AICC) on Wednesday. According to AICC, this year a total of 113 fires have burned nearly 200 acres statewide.
