Fire activity is currently limited to an area of two to three acres on the upslope edge in the middle of the fire. This burning area is creeping upslope into a spruce hardwood mix and consists of a ground fire. The burn is putting up a moderate column of smoke which is drifting over the northern end of Lake Clark. There is still some potential for spots across Currant Creek as the active fire backs downslope into a green pocket of spruce above the creek. The rest of the fire appears cold and once the interior fuel pockets are consumed there should be a low threat of spread south across Currant Creek.
