The fire continued to actively burn throughout the night, with winds still heavy in the morning. H-212HL, with IC on board, did a recon flight in the afternoon. The fire was estimated as approximately 2000 acres, running, torching, crowning, and spotting in mostly old burn and black spruce. Do to the extremity of the fire, the suppression plan is to develop a point protection strategy for allotments and cabins which are imminently threatened, or which may become threatened if there is no significant change in the weather. Two Type 2 crews and 1 Type 2IA crew were mobilized to the fire, and two more Type 2 crews will be shuttled in tomorrow from McGrath. The fire received no precipitation throughout the day, and will be flown tomorrow to determine if has merged with Fire 209 as predicted.
